i read this blog post several hours ago and then i took a nap

during the nap i had a dream that you were watching me eat a sandwich and because i took the tomatoes off you said i seemed like i was prone to addiction and that everything i did made me seem like an addict
i got upset and cried in the dream
then you apologized

hey this is conor i had a dream with you in it last night

you were wearing gym shorts and you had an athletic build
you were really cocky
and really open about it
you also had your own line of skateboarding shoes out that was based off shoplifting from american apparel

(sent via my paper aeroplane)

i am sending you this
from across the world
from a room painted blue
from a city with a real life castle

i want to go back to when the entire sword went into the bull like a toothpick into a plum
i want to go there
and to stay there
only leaving if someone decided to pour orange juice on my face

tao lin

i've been reading your book, bed

in short sittings in the union square barnes and noble

i contemplated either buying that book or a new copy of jurassic park but then i read that story about greg rolling with the high school kids and felt depressed and bought my girlfriend a notebook instead.

yeah i'm thinking if i have some free time i'll go back to barnes and noble and read half of your book and then buy it take it home and finish it and then buy jurassic park

i once had a job taking orders out of a catalog over the phone and mia farrow called and i didn't recognize her last name.

i thought she said "ferrell."

i asked her to spell it, which she did.

i didn't feel shy or anything once i realized who she was.

i got her to buy some extra stuff that was on sale.

she spent $3000 or so.

my supervisor was a lesbian who was the daughter of a mouseketeer.

she starred in local plays and her lover sometimes got jealous and beat her up.

people used to tell me I looked "really pissed off" while "working." also,
thhhe h on thhhis computer ghets pusshhed down easily, as doess the s apparentlhyh.

I bought this book and am specificallyh lookingh forward to the over-cuncluded pessimism about life

do you remember the 1st thing you ate?

it might be a stretch to remember.

maybe mine was breast milk, i'm not sure.

i feel like my mom couldn't breast feed me or something.

i will have to ask now.

but then again, that should be considered 1st thing drank.

but any consumption of food is eating right?

i appreciate this.

today someone tried to tell me that the internet,
particularly blogging,
has made us a society of socially handicapped histrionics.
i didn't know what to do so i said something very quietly and walked away and checked my email

sometimes

i see two dashes with a space each and sometimes there are no spaces

but 'plain text' (such as this comment) cannot convert two dashes into an em dash the way it can in word.

i do not know the html code for an em dash and cannot make that happen.

it took us about an hour, the A train kept bouncing back and forth ping pong(ing) us.

i was really hungry,

i got quiet and artur wanted to talk.

i felt bad.

when we got home i toasted bread with agave nectar and warmed up soy milk with organic peanut butter in it.

i then fell asleep.

now i'm at the studio drinking black coffee.

someone ate an avocado and died. they had cancer. the avocado was innocent. it had a bad lawyer though. now it is spending time with some other avocados it doesn't like as much as other avocados it has known. it does not feel too optimistic or fresh.

I can't believe 50,000 people a day care about neil gaiman and his collection of leather jackets.

i think it's amazing that you somehow made nearly all of those drawn animals look like they'd just realized the soulcrushing weight of the universe or something.

I met a guy in a bar once,
asked him if he thought Taiwan and Mainland China
should be one country.

He told me he thought
the whole world should be one country.
